Environmental Commitment

LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental design)

LEED is a market-based rating system that facilitates and certifies higher energy and environmental performance of buildings and communities. The rating system is adapted to the Canadian market through an inclusive process that engages stakeholders and experts representing the various sectors of the Canadian industry. A rapidly-growing number of governments and private sector organizations are adopting LEED certification in their policies, programming and operations, aimed at achieving and demonstrating sustainability.

Respect for and protection of the environment are the heart of activities Perfix. As part of its environmental policy, Perfix encourages and promotes among its employees attitudes that raise awareness of environmental protection and sustainable development.

As a corporate citizen dedicated to the welfare of future generations, our goals are to make responsible management of our operations and minimize as much as possible the various impacts of our products on the environment.

Steel - Metal furniture

All our metal furniture is made from cold rolled steel. The recycled content is composed as follows:

Post-commercial: 27,3 % Post-industrial: 40,6 % Total recycled content: 67,9 %

The residue of the manufacturing process are sent to a firm that specializes in recycling.

Packaging material (Boxed, end-caps)

Post-commercial: 90 to 95 % Post-industrial: 5 to 10 % Total recycled content: 100 %

Also, when the delivery and / or installation is performed by the team Perfix, furniture is shipped non-packaged to minimize unnecessary losses and wastage. The furniture is wrapped in cushioned blankets which are then reused at future deliveries.

Refurbishment and reuse of metal furniture

At Perfix, we are proceeding with the refurbishment and reuse of used metal furniture regularly. We use our website www.perfix.ca to display used furniture in "USED / LIQUIDATION" section provided for this purpose. Thus, our customers can benefit from furniture in excellent condition at a reduced price.
